Originally a working farm, the property has been modified over the years to provide a modest farmhouse and adjoining cottage plus a range of predominantly traditional stone and pan tiled barns which have existing planning consent for conversion to holiday cottages.

In addition to this there is a paddock of grassland extending to a total of 1.6 acres. This is a wonderful position with sea views, close to the town yet comfortably away from the hustle and bustle.

As you approach the property from the road, the first part of the building is the cottage which is accessed from the porch in the rear garden, the second part being the farmhouse accessed from the porch facing onto the driveway.
